DETAILED ACTION

The previous final rejection is hereby withdrawn in view of this non-final rejection.

Applicant's election without traverse of species I of Group I in the reply filed on 10/20/05 is acknowledged. Claims 5, 8, 13 stand withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a nonelected species and invention, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Election was made without traverse in the reply filed on 10/20/05.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1, 2, 9, 10, 14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Gavit et al (US-6889927). Note guide member 46 and resilient securing mechanism 74, 75, and 102/104 which is coupled to both the hub and the flanges. Since all recited structures are present, all recited functions such as windable in first and second directions are deemed inherent.

Art Unit: 3654

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 3, 4, 12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Gavit et al (US-6889927) in view of Smith et al (US-4709873).

Gavit et al discloses an engagement portion 104 on the guide member 46 and a receiving portion 74/75 on the flanges. That the engagement portion is instead on the flange and the receiving portion on the guide member as shown by Fig. 3 of Smith et al would have been obvious to a person having ordinary skill in the art merely involving a shift in the location of the parts, all functioning in the same manner. Smith et al also shows a different embodiment in Figs. 1-2 in which a spring tab 110 is used for the same purpose. It would have been obvious to a person having ordinary skill in the art to alternatively provide the apparatus of Gavit et al with a spring tab as taught by Smith et al to releasably secure the guide member.
